SUFFER LITTLE CHILDREN

To live under Blair

* HANG CHILD MURDERERS *

THE REVOLTING paedophile murder of little Sarah Payne shocked and saddened every decent person in Britain. But while public attention was naturally fixed on the need to catch and punish the monster who snuffed out her innocent life and broke her family's hearts, very little was said about the people really responsible for the rising tide of brutal crime and sickening perversion which is swamping Britain - the bleeding heart liberals who have spent the last thirty or so years turning our society into one where the 'rights' of criminals and perverts count for more than the right of innocent children and their families.

In creating the permissive society the left-wing 'intellectuals' who dominate the media and the old parties have:

- Removed the right of society and the courts to execute even the most depraved murderers. They bleat on about the 'rights' of criminals and the need

says ...HUMAN RIGHTS

THE imminent introduction of the Human Rights Act is now creating a sham furore in the media. The courts will be clogged by politically correct claims for compensation, says the media, and the majority of British people left with little say in the future of their society.

Quite correct, and precisely the outcome planned for and supported for decades by the controlled media and the old political parties, some elements of whom now shed crocodile tears about the outcome of their own handiwork.

The Human Rights Act is not, however, an unalloyed disadvantage to us. On October 2, for the first time, we will have positive legal rights to express our views, even if others strongly object, and the right of assembly. Anyone with long experience of the patriotic movement, who has seen at first hand the capricious persecutions directed by the authorities against nationalist groups, without any effective legal redress, should know how significant the coming changes in the law will be for us. We might not like European laws foisted on us, but, in the fight for our survival as a people, any weapons should be used which are available to us.

It is therefore not surprising that the one area of the new human rights law almost completely ignored by the press concerns freedom of speech and the right to hold meetings. They don't want you to know! What will happen is that councils and other public authorities will carry on after October as though nothing had changed, in the vain hope that no one will notice the new laws. We must ensure that they do not get away with it!

to 'help' them, while ignoring their victims. Then they wonder why, with soft prisons offering no real deterrent, homicidal perverts decide that they can get away with murder.

■ Destroyed the old moral certainties about right and wrong, teaching instead that individuals should be free to do whatever they want, whenever they want to. Then they wonder why selfish, socially destructive crimes - ranging from vandalism and burglary right through to rape and murder - are blighting the lives of millions of innocent people.

■ Wrecked our school system by replacing discipline and the "three Rs" with trendy theories and politically correct propaganda. Then they wonder why so many school-leavers can't read or write or hold down a proper job (if they can find one), and why teenage pregnancies, drug addiction, delinquency and suicide are all soaring.

■ Unleashed some of the most depraved aspects of human sexuality by allowing ever more explicit pornography to appear publically in the mass media, and encouraging campaigners for 'sexual minority' rights to push for one concession after another. They lower the Age of Consent, they allow groups to campaign to legalise paedophilia, they press for children to be taught about homosexuality in schools. Then they wonder why all kinds of sex crimes and perversions are on the increase.

■ Betrayed

The British people have never asked for these changes. The left-liberals have never put their permissive experiment to the vote. And, of course, the fact that a teletext phone-in poll immediately after the murder of Sarah Payne produced a 98 per cent response rate in favour of the restoration of the death penalty explains why.

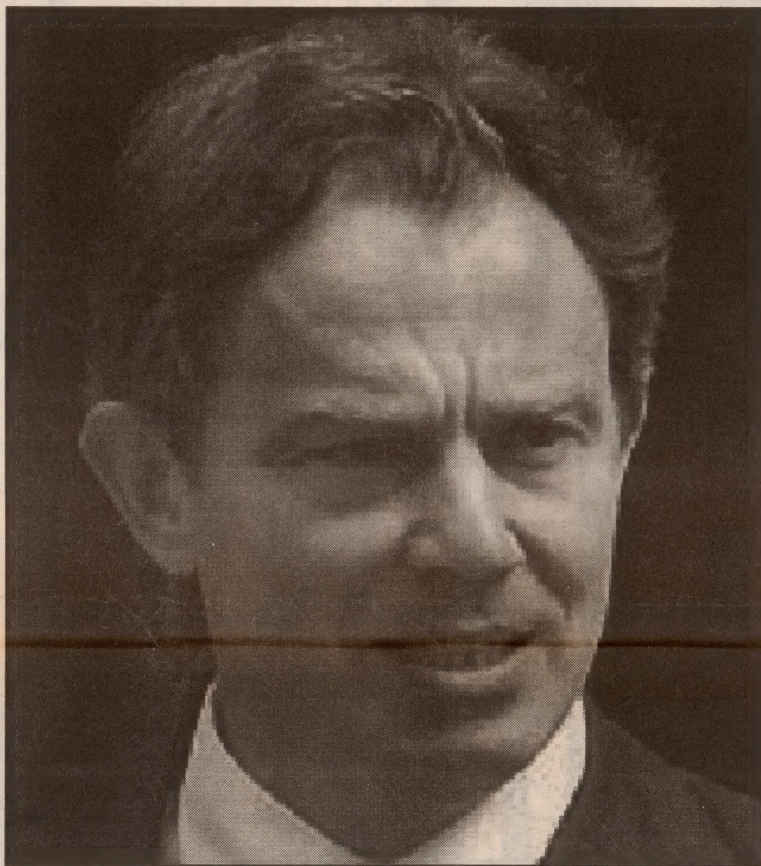

The smug, self-satisfied liberal 'elite' who dominate the media and 'respectable' politics know full well that popular opinion is massively against their permissive theories and their terrible consequences, so they just ignore what the ordinary people who pay their salaries think and want.

This shouldn't come as a surprise. What do you expect of a government that includes a minister who has been cautioned by the police about sex with an under-age boy in a toilet in Scotland? What do you expect of a government that includes a minister well-known in Westminster circles for his penchant for young rent-boys and cocaine? What do you expect of a government that allows a cover-up of the Dunblane Massacre because a real enquiry would unearth a paedophile ring that stretches into its own ranks? And what do you expect of Tory and Lib-Dem opposition parties that know all about these things, but stay silent about them for fear of having their own perverse skeletons dragged into the cold light of day? People in Britain watched with amazement a couple of years ago as a series of paedophile and corruption scandals destroyed the credibility of the left-liberal 'elite' in Belgium. Public anger over these things has been a very major factor in the rise of the new nationalism which is now knocking on the gates of power in Belgium as in more and more other European countries. When British voters come to understand that a similar diseased swamp of corruption and perversion lies beneath the squeaky-clean images of the Old Gang parties, their anger is going to become the fuel that will propel the British National Party to power as well.

That can't come a moment too soon. For little Sarah Payne wasn't the first, and nor will she be the last - until a British National Party government rounds up the paedophiles lurking under official licence all over Britain, and until a British National Party government gives the courts the right to impose the death penalty on sex killers whose convictions are supported by DNA evidence. No one else will do it, but it must be done. For Sarah.

TONY BLAIR: has a lot to answer for!

THE EU IS FASCIST!

IF YOU EVER needed further proof that the European Union is edging ever more closer to becoming the Fascistic totalitarian monster that most ordinary people suspect it to be, and that Britain's power to govern itself has been almost totally usurped by the European Union, we only need to consider the fact that self-employed British workers such as Steven Thoburn (pictured right), a market trader from Sunderland can now be put out of work in three weeks and threatened with prosecution because, as a trader, he wishes to continue selling his produce in pounds and ounces rather than converting to the EU inspired metric system!

In one poll asking whether the greengrocer should be prosecuted, 98 per cent of people sided with the trader's right to sell fruit and vegetables in imperial measures.

Naturally it comes as no surprise that local authorities such as Sunderland Council, rather than helping local people actually prefers to hinder them by helping to enforce these dictatorial EU regulations.

STEVE THOBURN: Had his scales seized because of 'EU law'

Sunderland Council says it is an act of "misconduct" not to comply with EU dictats, and that non-compliance can be regarded as making a trader "unsuitable" to hold a street trading licence. All of these clampdowns are of course being overseen by the Trading Standards Officers and is further proof that the EU is wading into the pool of British sovereignty.

The Voice of Freedom says that the only way that the British people can firmly put a stop to this continuing interference from Brussels is for the British people to start looking to the British National Party. And as the BNP's share of the vote at the polls all over the nation have started to show, this is indeed starting to take place. As Steven Norris has recently said "it looks as if the BNP is on the up".

Name the guilty men!

IS FREEDOM going to name the Labour party perverts? In a word, no! It simply isn't our job to take on the kind of massively expensive court action that would inevitably result. Labour's truth-killing machine has learnt all too well from its former paymaster, pension-thief Robert Maxwell, how to use the libel laws to silence awkward opponents who don't happen to be multi-millionaires.

It isn't our job, but it is the job of the mainstream press. The big newspapers have the resources to ferret out witnesses, to corroborate facts, and to spill the beans on the corruption at the heart of the Government.

Bill Clinton: Trousers down

And they have the money to take on big-name politicians in a legal system known throughout the world as "the best that money can buy."

Unfortunately, however, the mass media are just as riddled with perverts and their fellow-travellers as the old political parties. So, for all their big-selling headlines about "naming and shaming" pederasts, they will only tell us about the small fry.

The big predators at the top of the paedophile food-chain - men at the heart of the world of politics, the judiciary and the social services - remain protected by a hypocritical curtain of media silence. But the paper curtain is being ripped full of holes. The scandals involving Establishment politicians which we mention in our front page story are already common knowledge among Internet discussion groups. Anyone with an Internet link and a spare half-hour can check out all the horrible allegations for themselves, and make up their own mind whether or not they are probably true.

A few years ago, the kind of material you will find would have remained hidden from the public in police caution records and in the heads of a few bought-and-paid-for newspaper editors. But, as President Bill Clinton found out with Monica Lewinsky, the worldwide web has changed all that forever. It's only a matter of time before the knowledge spread by this powerful new technology exposes the multi-faceted scandal of perversion, corruption, drugs and child-abuse that lies behind the smug and holier-than-thou mask of the Westminster establishment. So while we're not going to name the names, remember that you first heard about New Labour's Great Scandal in Freedom.

IN OUR POSTBAG - UK & EUROPE, Geography textbook GCSE level: Or is it "The Asian Subcontinent?"

Regular readers of Freedom will be very sorry to hear that long-time Freedom columnist Ted Budden has suffered a severe stroke and will not be able to write for us again. Several party colleagues have been to visit Ted and report that, under the circumstances, he is in good spirits, and that his family hope to be able to get him home soon.

Ted Budden's contribution will, of course, be sorely missed, and his unique style can neither be imitated or replaced. But we believe that SAM PEPYS, our 21st Century diarist, may be the man to fill the gap. As Pepys lays bare the madness of multi-cultural Britain on an almost daily basis, his personal view of our times is most suited to the Internet, where his diary can be updated every day. It is hoped to arrange this shortly, but in the meantime we believe that Freedom readers will enjoy this plain-speaking personal review of the news over a few typical days last month.

COOL CASH

Welcome to Cool Britannia. A news-reader allegedly wants an increase from her £150,000 per annum salary. £150,000 a year for reading the news and that's not enough. How long will it take you to earn £150,000? The problem is, though, she will correctly think that her yearly salary should exceed the income that someone who runs around a field kicking other people and a football gets in only three weeks. The system has any amount of money. The way that it is spent is dreadful.

Our society is sick to its rotten core with its values having been turned upside down. This has been done deliberately with the string pullers fully understanding the consequences. Won't you join us and help to sort it out root by stinking root?

SAFE IN THEIR HANDS

Saw on Ceefax that one Mlungisi Tshabangu stabbed a care assistant to death in front of patients at Broxley hospital. He admitted manslaughter through diminished responsibility. The judge at the Old Bailey is said to have expressed concern that a nurse with signs of dangerous behaviour was allowed to work in the NHS unit until he killed a colleague. Whilst remanding him for sentence the judge said she was concerned he had been able to get work in his condition.

Can you think why anyone with a name like Mlungisi Tshabangu might have been allowed to continue in his work despite warning signs? It couldn't possibly be that anyone who complained or warned about him would have lost their job for being a bigoted racist, could it?

BLAIR'S MEMO

Monday morning and we wake up to news of the Blair memo. He worries that he and his party as seen as out of touch. Out of touch regarding families. Out of touch regarding asylum. Out of touch regarding law and order. Out of touch regarding Gut British Instinct.

And this man is surprised? Everything he and his party have done has been diametrically opposed to British instincts. He wants to scrap clause 28. His Chancellor takes away tax incentives for married couples. What kind of example does this set to young Euan? He will not tell the truth, in fact, because he is hostage to so many minority groups he cannot tell the truth. The figures regarding asylum seekers are appalling, whether it's the total number trying to come to my country or those who go missing, yet he and his cohorts still go on about the British people being racist for simply telling the truth. And what about the shootings in areas of high immigration and appalling levels of anti-white racism and discrimination? What kind of example is he setting when he ignores the truth and castigates those who tell the truth?

Is it not the case that lawyers like he and his wife make a living from ripping our criminal justice system apart from both ends at once? Does he not continue his quest to relinquish more and more power to Europe? And yet this man seriously wonders why his mask is slipping. The gut British instinct is espoused lucidly by the British National Party. He, however, and his cohorts who control our mass media make sure that we are branded as haters and extremists. Gradually, however, we are getting our message through to an increasingly receptive British public. The British public are beginning to wake up to the absurdity of political correctness and realise that their gut instincts are fine. The leaking of this memo is a great piece of fortune. Let us hope that the British National Party can capitalise on Blair's enunciation that the family, asylum, law and order and being British are important. It's almost like Blair saying that the policies of the British National Party are the ones that the British people will vote for. They will.

COMPENSATION CULTURE

The 'M25 three' have had their convictions quashed despite the evidence against them being "formidable". Against one of them the evidence was "overwhelming". The judge evidently made clear that this was not a declaration of their innocence but that fact will surely be forgotten about as their lawyers pursue vast compensation claims. Guess who is going to have to pay for that? Look in the mirror!

Stuff the NHS, education, your pension, the police and decent transport. Stuff the whole lot of them. Instead of bettering our country for our own people let's watch the country's coffers siphoned off to people like the 'M25 three' against whom the evidence was formidable and their despicable lawyers. Welcome to Blair's multi-cultural Britain!

MORE IMMIGRANTS

Just when you thought it could hardly get worse, it does. Home Office Minister Barbara Roche and other ministers are considering letting "skilled migrants" enter Britain. She used a conference speech in Paris on Friday to tell delegates that "immigrants have had a very positive impact on the societies they join." Surely these skilled people will of far greater use to their own countries helping their own kinfolk out of third world poverty. What this idea will do, if put in to practice, is to rob the developing world of the people it needs most and will merely confine the developing world to poverty for many more generations. Hardly a very ethical foreign policy is it, Barbara?

Just think of the crime that will surround the manufacture of false certificates and work references. We know that people will do anything to get here so we should not delude ourselves that migrants will not lie about their skills. Let's suppose that one of these so-called skilled immigrants comes to your company for a job and you don't believe his credentials. If he takes you to court for racial discrimination, under the proposed European legislation the onus will be on you to prove that your decision was not a racist one. The burden on proof will be on you.

Despite public opinion being opposed to more immigrants of any sort, this government continues to ride roughshod over its electorate. The result of ITV's poll about this resulted in around 97% of the voters being opposed to Roche's idea.

"NO-GO" AREAS FOR WHITES

A POLICE CHIEF in Oldham has warned that the high levels of Asian race attacks on whites are creating "no-go" areas in parts of the Lancashire town.

Last month Freedom covered the vicious attack on Dennis Clayton who was set upon by a gang of racists with machetes, baseball bats and iron bars.

Attacks in the town are increasing, and on average 75% of race attacks are carried out by Asians on whites.

Police have set up a Racial Crime Squad, and the overall figures ending in April show 456 racist incidents - double the previous two years figures.

Oldham has a population of approximately 220,000 people, of whom around 24,000 are Asians who mainly live in areas like Westwood, Glodwick and Werneth.

Although national papers such as The Daily Mail are just starting to cover the failure of the multiracial society in Oldham, Freedom, and British Nationalist before it, has been covering it for years.

Chief Superintendent. Eric Hewitt, head of Oldham police division, said: "In these areas there are disproportionately high levels of reports of gangs of Asian youths attacking white pedestrians who are seen as trespassing into their territory. This raises the issue of no-go areas and that has to be discouraged at all levels." Mr Clayton, 33 was with family members when nine Asian youths ambushed them, said: "We did absolutely nothing to provoke them. I covered my face with my arm and I got hit with a machete. They could have chopped my hand off."

A white shopkeeper said:

"In these areas there are disproportionately high levels of reports of gangs of Asian youths attacking white pedestrians who are seen as trespassing into their territory."
Chief Sup. Eric Hewitt

"Gangs of Asian youths hang around... You just don't see whites walking around any more, it's too dangerous." It would seem that these people are experiencing the pleasures of the multiracial paradise always talked about by today's politicians.

Rover enjoys upsurge!

HAVING been driven into the ground by German firm BMW, a reborn Rover is powering its way into the black.

The Midland car giant is enjoying major sales upsurges in several key market areas, including the UK, Spain, France, Austria and Switzerland. Sales are up by nearly 11 per cent across Britain and the continent.

The superb Rover 75 is leading the charge. This is no surprise to motoring experts - or to workers at Longbridge - as everyone knew that the car is so good that BMW wouldn't push it while they owned Rover because it would have cut sales of their own Series 3 vehicles.

As a result, just two months after coming back under British ownership, Rover is making money and expanding sales. The lesson for other British firms struggling under foreign ownership and operating to their own agenda is obvious.

The lesson should be getting through to British voters too: British ownership of British industry is the only way to safeguard our jobs. And the only party which favours British ownership over foreign-dominated globalism is the British National Party.

That's why we're different; that's why the globalism addicts in the old parties and the media attack us at every opportunity; and that's why we're getting more and more support.

OBITUARY

Lady Jane Birdwood

It is with deep regret that Freedom announces the death of the Dowager Lady Birdwood. Lady Birdwood died of cancer on June 28th aged 87. A staunch nationalist for all her life, Lady Jane as she was affectionately known represented the party at the 1992 General Election for Dewsbury and appeared as a regular speaker on party platforms across the country.

Jane was best known, however, for her editorship of Choice newspaper. A courageous lady and a true believer in free speech, Lady Jane was three times hauled before Britain's courts under the state censorship laws. On the last occasion, the 'trial' was indefinitely postponed because of Jane's failing health. Indeed, it was Jane's failing health - occasioned in part by three vicious muggings over several years in her home town of Fulham, W. London - that prevented her from representing the party once again in Dewsbury at the 1997 General Election.

A true patriot with a heart of oak, Jane will be missed by all who knew her. R.I.P

What is it about self-made north London millionaire (Lord Levy) that a scrape with Fleet Street should have New Labour so agitated on his behalf? Could it be that they know that he knows where the party's financial bodies are buried?

Henry Drucker, a fund-raiser hired by New Labour to attract donors, had a spectacular fall-out with Lord Levy when he suggested abandoning (blind trusts). Lord Levy ordered him out of his house. Dr Drucker said: My suspicion is that until we have the accounts of the blind funds made public there are skeletons in the cupboard which can come out at any moment. The man with the key to that cupboard is Lord Levy.

For more than sixty years Nazi crimes have been used as a smokescreen for the communists' crimes despite the fact that the latter preceded, succeeded and exceeded the former. One can even perhaps understand the attitude of many ordinary German soldiers going to war against the Soviet Union, who believed that they were fighting a monster responsible for tens of millions of deaths. I would mention that my mother in 1944 was dragged by the Nazis into a labour camp.

A survey has discovered that no less than 80% of women are miserable at work and would leave their jobs if they could afford to do so. The findings also revealed that most women believed that working full-time damaged their own and their children's lives, and caused marriages to break down under the strain.

Such a survey leaves the Government looking pretty silly. It is using stick and carrot to propel women into jobs on the basis that women want to work even if they are mothers. The only things preventing them from doing so, it claims, are lack of affordable childcare, male chauvinism and long working hours. Now this survey makes clear that women want no such thing.

FERTILITY TREATMENT FOR ASYLUM SEEKERS

WHILE thousands of childless British couples all over the country face long waits for medical help to conceive, it is emerging that recent immigrants and asylum seekers are jumping the queue and getting expensive fertility treatment on the NHS.

No doubt there are many cases that haven't been publicised, but it has already been revealed that South Essex Health Authority has referred an Albanian couple to the Fertility Clinic at top London hospital St. Barts, and that asylum seekers in Liverpool are also receiving IVF treatment courtesy of the taxpayer.

Birmingham Health Authority have also confirmed that they would consider requests for fertility treatment from asylum seekers.

A spokesman was quoted in the Birmingham Evening Mail as defending this decision by saying: "The Department of Health guidelines are quite clear. They are that everyone is treated on an equal basis while they are in this country." Freedom says if that's the case, the plain fact of the matter is that the Department of Health guidelines are wrong.

What they should say is that, when NHS resources are scarce, priority should always be given to individuals and families who were born and bred in this country, and whose hard work and taxes helped to establish the welfare state in the first place. And since the low birthrate of the native British is increasingly being used by the multiracists as 'justification' for their plan to swamp this country with millions more immigrants, it is absolutely insane to make childless British couples wait for fertility treatment while asylum seekers jump the queue.

There's no point blaming the immigrants who take advantage of the situation, but it's time to get rid of the politicians and civil servants who created it in the first place.

Ulster sell-out continues

Terrorists and murderers walk free, not a single bullet handed in yet!

OF ALL the shameful days in the long sorry history of New Labour's sell-out of Northern Ireland, July 28th was one of the worst. Amid the popping of champagne corks and cheers of their fellow killers, guards at the Maze prison opened the gates to let out 86 of the most brutal terrorists to have murdered, maimed and tortured the innocent victims of the IRA's long war against the loyalist majority and law-abiding Catholics.

Among those released was Sean Kelly, the IRA bomber who killed nine people, including a pregnant woman and a seven-year-old girl, when he blew up Frizzell's chip shop on the Shankill Road in October 1993.

Walking free with him was Jim McVeigh, last 'IRA commander' of the Republicans at the Maze.

McVeigh, who had been sentenced to 24 years for conspiring to murder a British soldier, read out a carefully prepared statement outside the prison gates: "We walk free from this prison camp, as have our comrades before us, proud republicans, unbowed and unbroken."

No doubt the pro-IRA idiots in the USA who have funded the terror in the belief that they were helping to "free Ireland" will lap up that bit of the statement, but it is equally sure that the IRA's North American lie machine won't tell them what the psychotic Marxist McVeigh said next: "We are determined to pursue and achieve the goals for which so many gave their lives, that is, the establishment of a united democratic socialist republic."

The American Friends of the BNP will, however, be doing everything possible to educate as many Irish-Americans as possible about the true agenda of the anti-white, Communist IRA.

Also released were some of the most despicable characters to have emerged in the so-called 'loyalist' paramilitaries.

These started off mainly as a genuine and essentially defensive reaction to the IRA's war on the loyalist major-

GOVERNMENT SURRENDERS OVER COMPENSATION

ANOTHER Government surrender came at the start of July when it was announced that Far East Prisoners of War would be receiving compensation for the suffering they suffered at the hands of the Japanese.

For literally years, successive governments have maintained that, although the Japanese government wasn't willing to pay reparations, the British government didn't have a duty either to try to force them to do so or, failing that, to step in and help the ex-POWs itself.

This government neglect went on for 55 years, with the pleas of former POWs and their families being consistently ignored.

So why the sudden U-turn? Perhaps it has something to do with the fact that, just six months ago, the BNP's newly-formed Association of British Ex-Servicemen took up the case of the ex-Jap prisoners. ABEX supporters up and down the country, from the ages of 14 to 90, deluged local newspapers with letters saying how disgraceful it was that the government, while spending millions of pounds to promote Anne Frank Day, was ignoring the inhuman suffering and burying the memory of thousands of our own people - captured civilians as well as soldiers, sailors and air-men.

This BNP-organised campaign got widespread publicity, and there is no doubt that Labour party focus groups and strategists will have told Blair and Co that thousands of ex-servicemen and their families were looking with growing sympathy at the initiative.

And so, after 55 years of turning a blind eye, the liberal 'elite' who dominate Whitehall and Westminster suddenly decided that they would have to act.

So at least the Far East POWs themselves have now received some recognition and compensation for their terrible suffering in the British Holocaust in the Japanese death camps. But that's just the beginning for us. Having won the first round, ABEX and other ex-services associations will now be pressing for compensation for the widows of those who never came back, or of the many who returned but never recovered and who had to be nursed until they died as a result of their maltreatment.

Then there are the children who either never knew their fathers, or whose only memories of them are as broken, empty shells before they died. All these people too should receive compensation.

It's not primarily a question of money, but a question of recognition.

A written letter of apology to every family from the Japanese government would make a world of difference for a start, and we are going to push Blair and Co to demand just that. In the meantime, though, ABEX organiser Ron Amery would like to thank every BNP member and supporter who played a part in the successful campaign for compensation for the death camp survivors themselves.

ity, but quickly sank into a quagmire of sectarian murder, racketeering and drug-dealing, becoming a mirror image of their republican opponents.

Glen Cunningham and Stephen Irwin, for example, were freed despite the fact that they had been convicted of the 1993 Greysteel Massacre, in which they burst into the Rising Sun pub on Hallowe'en, shouting "trick or treat" before murdering eight people for the 'crime' of drinking in a Catholic pub. Such hate-filled reaction made the 'loyalist' paramilitaries the best recruiting sergeants the IRA ever had.

Even worse, most of them have now taken the large sums of money on offer from the Government and have become enthusiastic supporters of Blair's Good Friday sell-out.

When the time-table for the early release of such psychopaths was worked out by Peter Mandelson and the rest of the team handling the betrayal of Northern Ireland, it was supposed to be linked to the decommissioning of terrorist weapons.

In fact, of course, neither the IRA nor the main loyalist paramilitaries have handed over a single bullet. And on the same day as these latest releases it was announced that the Croatian police had seized a whole lorryload of anti-tank weapons, assault rifles and plastic explosives that had been destined for 'dissident' republicans who believe that the sell-out isn't going quickly enough.

Unfortunately, of course, the motivation behind the combined Tory/New Labour "Peace Process" never was primarily "to get the gun out of Northern Irish politics", but rather to get Northern Ireland out of Britain.

That is why the political and constitutional sell-out is carrying on, and why the terrorist releases have continued, even though the forces of violent republicanism, far from handing over their weapons, are busy acquiring more.

the EU and immigration are all hot issues. Regular leafleting is the key to increased recruitment. These are first class propaganda weapons. Use them to build the British National Party!

BNP PUBLICATIONS

BNP Activists' Handbook

This handbook is a complete instruction course in all the essential techniques needed in promoting and building the BNP at local level, starting from scratch when the activist is entirely alone. This booklet is a mine of information that all activists, old and new, will find valuable in the quest to make their activities more efficient and effective. It is a 'must' for everyone who wants to be more than just an armchair nationalist. The handbook is illustrated and runs to 71 pages. £2.00 post-free.

BNP Propaganda handbook

Spreading the Word deals with propaganda and supplements the Activists' Handbook. Illustrated, Spreading the Word is 60 pages and contains five sections:- (1) Principles of Propaganda; (2) Recruitment; (3) Canvassing for Elections; (4) Speaking to the Media; and (5) Public speaking and presentation of Party meetings. Special attention is also given to dealing with enemy smears. £2.00 post-free.

DO YOU THINK

Currently the party's best leaflet. Do you think has been reworked and reprinted in the hundreds of thousands. As a result, this two-sided, two-colour leaflet has come down in price by a full £1 per thousand to just £7/1,000. Postage rates are £5.65/1,000 and £6.45/2,000.

With bogus 'asylum seekers' continuing to be in the news, there is no other party in the UK that will be pressing this particular button with the public in quite the same way as the BNP.

Get your supplies today and as the leaflets go out, watch the enquiries rush in because everyone agrees 'Enough is enough!'

Left: Albanian immigrants pour off a freighter into Italy. Once there, EU rules make it easy for them to join the flood of immigrants and bogus 'asylum seekers' pouring into Britain. It's not a question of race, it's a question of space.

DO YOU THINK

that Britain should stop taking in, housing, feeding and caring for thousands of 'asylum seekers' at a time when homelessness and hospital waiting lists are steadily rising?

YES/NO

that local councils should start putting native-born British people to the front of the housing queue for a change?

YES/NO

that the Home Secretary is wrong to give an extra 30,000 'asylum seekers' the right to stay in Britain just because the authorities haven't been able to investigate the often bogus claims as to why they should be allowed in?

YES/NO

that we should stop building new houses on green field sites to make room for 150,000 extra immigrants every year?

YES/NO

that the politicians were wrong to allow mass immigration to change the face of our country, without ever even asking if we wanted it?

YES/NO

'Yes' every time? That's what we think too. That's why we're building the British National Party, and why you should join our campaign to put the British people first, before bogus asylum seekers and before new immigrants... before it's too late.

THE BNP AND RACE

The BNP is best known for its policy on race and immigration. The BNP opposes immigration into the UK from whatever its source. For forty years this immigration has primarily been coloured. But it is not an issue of colour since the party is equally opposed to immigration from Albania and Eastern Europe. The BNP is not a 'racial supremacy' party. The BNP does not claim that any one race is superior to any other, simply that they are different.

The party merely wishes to preserve those differences which make up the rich tapestry of human kind.

Neither has the BNP any connection with 'race hate'. Indeed it is the multi-racialists who are the haters since it is BNP Chairman Nick Griffin meets with Black nationalists. Its not a matter of 'hate'. All we want is mutual separation bringing the END of racism and hatred.

they who are determined to destroy all cultures and all races to achieve a multi-racial mish-mash. To protect and preserve the racial and cultural integrity of the British people — and of others too, the party believes in separation. Only in a Black society will Black kids find true Black role models.

Only in a Muslim society will Muslims find their religion free from Western influence.

All peoples need a homeland. The British too need a homeland. Nor are the BNP 'racist'. Indeed, the BNP are resisting the racist colonisation of Britain in which the native people of Britain are having their culture suppressed, their land colonised and are being discriminated against on racial grounds.

To sum up, the BNP is fighting for the very right to exist of not just the British, but of all peoples.

ITS NOT A MATTER OF HATE!

●The multiracists who are trying to destroy the identity of Britain often say that anyone who opposes mass immigration and forced multiculturalism is a 'bigot' or a 'hater'. This is nonsense!

The truth is that the real bigots are the people who are so hostile to the British that they've turned us into second-class citizens in our own country. And the real race haters are the people who want to mix up and destroy all the separate races and cultures so that international big business can make maximum profits in a single, globalised, world market.

Many non-whites, particularly Black separatists and Muslims, completely agree with the British National Party in rejecting enforced multiculturalism. More and more of the immigrants who came here during the 1950s and 1960s are realising that they were tricked into coming here as cheap labour for Tory businessmen and cheap votes for Labour councillors, and that Britain really doesn't suit them — which is why thousands of West Indians in particular are now returning home. Labour Home Office spokesman Mike O'Brien recently warned on Radio Five that, if the multiracial experiment failed, "our children, black and white alike, will pay a heavy price."

Being politically active in local communities in many of the most heavily multiracial areas of Britain, the BNP knows that the multiracial experiment has already failed. This is why we want to bring it to an end, and to provide the financial assistance needed to enable the very large numbers of non-whites who want to return to their lands of ethnic origin to do so. Our Homeward Bound offer has led to cooperation between BNP activists and black people who want to leave Britain, and we are always very happy to work with them.

Crime Unlimited: Organised Gangs Gaining Ground

Security chiefs have painted a frightening picture of how organised crime gangs are taking hold of Britain. From armed robbery and drug trafficking to fraud and tax evasion, a new report showed the menace was infiltrating all levels of British society.

The revelation came as the National Criminal Intelligence Service lifted the lid for the first time on organised crime — and showed the threat was seeping out of major cities into rural towns.

CRIME FAMILIES WORTH BILLIONS

It revealed the nation's biggest organised crime families were worth billions of pounds a year.

British criminals are still responsible for most of the organised crime, but foreign gangs are also posing a big threat. John Abbott, NCIS director general, said: "The grip and influence of organised crime is far reaching."

"The activities of organised crime threaten the economic fabric of this country, its tentacles reaching into the deepest and most remote crevices of our way of life."

"Its effects can be seen in our school playgrounds, on our TV screens, from Lands End to John O'Groats."

The Threat from Serious and Organised Crime report also revealed trafficking in illegal immigrants and Internet fraud were particular growth areas for organised crime. Mr Abbott added the problem had got into all levels of society.

FOREIGN GANGS MOVE IN

He said: "It worms its way into our profession — our lawyers, our accountants, our bankers are susceptible. "It's creeping its way into the new and exciting IT technology and is creating miserable victims out of its promises of a better life."

The report also revealed which problems were closely associated with criminals from ethnic backgrounds: Albanian criminals were associated mainly with heroin trafficking, illegal immigration and prostitution. Chinese crime groups include members of the Triads and were linked to illegal immigration and rivalry between different Chinese gangs. Colombian villains are mainly associated with cocaine-trafficking. South Asian criminals were notable for drugs wholesaling, in particular heroin. Other crimes include counterfeit clothing, mortgage fraud and mobile phone cloning.

A small number of Turkish organisations was responsible for the top tier of heroin trafficking in the UK. There were also examples of well-organised West Indian criminal groups involved in trafficking cocaine into the UK.

Write to: The Editor, Voice of Freedom, PO Box 1032, Ilford, Essex IG1 1DY

Sir — It seems to me we have become lost and disorientated regarding our nationality.

Be proud to be English, be proud to be white, be proud of our history, our heritage, our monarchy. Support local business, support business people from our background even if it costs a few pounds more. Pick up the goods, look at the country of origin. Cherish your Union flag. Support your white community, support your old because they fought to keep us from becoming the land we are becoming now.

Jon Marshall,
BNP Internet letters

Sir — The Chairman of a West Indian Centre in Leeds said in the Yorkshire Post: "The system has failed our children for too long. A school for black children could be the only alternative." What he was in fact implying is that along with the armed forces, police authorities, government, Boy Scout movement etc... ad nauseam, the education system of the UK is 'institutionally racist'. Sound familiar?

The proposal to create 'Blacks only' schools is in itself a racist idea or didn't that occur to him? Let's say the assumption that the education system is geared only to white achievement is correct. Why then do Asian students seem to do so well under a system that 'discriminates' actively against non-whites? Why not let him have his cake and eat it. All black schools with all black tutors. What would be the deafening outcry should whites wish to set up racially exclusive schools in that way? Sauce for the goose...

Mick Bolton, Leeds

Sir — Here's how to tell if you've joined up to the vast Right-Wing Conspiracy: You hear someone talking about morality and you no longer instantly assume he must be a sexually-repressed religious nut. You're actually relieved that your daughter plays with dolls and your son plays with toy guns. You sit all the way through 'Dead Man Walking', and at the end still want the guy to be executed.

Watching network news, you notice that the person opposing an issue is a 'conservative spokesman', while the one supporting it is a 'Harvard professor'. Christmas season rolls around and it hits you that there may be a religious connection. At your kids' open-school night, you are shocked to discover the only dead white male on their reading list is Oscar Wilde.

Greg Weilo, USA reader

Sir — People often comment on how society has changed in the last 30 years. For me the most significant social change has been in the last 15 years. Such rapid social changes are not unique to the UK, but also now to other European cities, and the same applies to the USA where the Founding Fathers of America must be turning in their graves at how society is. A lot of our problems today are not only the result of excessive immigration, but mainly due to White Liberals who, through control of advertising and the press, think everyone wants to live in a Benetton commercial world (We don't!). Words and phrases such as: 'gay education', and 'liberalism' should be banished and be replaced by words more appropriate such as 'patriotism', 'nationalism', 'morality' and 'unity' but not by 'extremism' or 'fascism'. If this change does not come about very soon, this green and pleasant land will be no more. Vote BNP, the only party that cares if you are white.

Michael Bettsworth

Sir — People in Sussex, as I am sure you and most people in the country, are disgusted with the murder of little Sarah Payne near Littlehampton. Lynda Lee Potter of the Daily Mail was spot on when she called for the return of capital punishment for paedophile child killers. Recently, a member of a Hackney paedophile ring was shot dead on his doorstep. Liberals and leftists bleat on about the death penalty infringing the rights of these evil people — well they lost any claim to rights when they defiled and killed children.

Even worse, the Archbishop of Westminster was exposed as employing a paedophile priest, even though he was told that the priest had abused boys as a chaplain. He was not sacked but moved and continued his paedophile activities. It just shows how sick this country has become when the guardians of spiritual and moral welfare behave in this way. Why not launch a mass leafleting campaign on the Sussex Coast with the popular anti-paedophile leaflet? 80% of the public want the death penalty for child killers yet Lib/Lab/Con refuse to listen to the people. You are the true democrats.

Sussex BNP voter

Sir — I see yet another group of asylum seekers is being sought by police in connection with a series of robberies; this time in the Scottish Highlands of all places. These Rumanian 'refugees' are of course preserving their ancient customs. Isolated farms are a favourite target which is why the proposal to disperse them in rural areas is asking for trouble.

Peter Gray, London

Sir — I'm very interested in joining your party. I have followed your progress for a few years, and have been tempted to join in the past, but it's not a very PC thing to do and mum and dad would not approve. When I travel to cities like Leicester, London, and my home town of Derby to a lesser extent, it's all too obvious how the country is being transformed. White people are encouraged to worship all things Indian, African etc.

It's rubbish to suppose that everyone who supports the BNP is an old timer from when the country was white. I and my friends are in our early twenties or late teens. The BNP has plenty of supporters here in Derby. Your web site is excellent and I saw your result in Bexley which was very encouraging. The BNP has enormous potential.

Brian McMenamin, Derby

Sir — I noticed in a paper how a recruit to the Metropolitan Police was expelled for having a Union Jack tattoo. I seem to remember that Tony Blair had Labour Party members waving Union Jacks outside Downing Street when he won the election in 1997. Will he intervene?

London BNP member

AMERICA: THE DISUNITED STATES

WHITES will become a minority group in California next year. Figures gathered by the California Department of Finance show that a combination of Hispanic, Asian and black immigration and high-birthrates has overwhelmed one of the most important states in the USA.

Only thirty years ago, California was more than 80 per cent white, and the speed with which that situation changed is being recognised as a warning for the rest of America.

Estimates as to when the European-Americans who built the USA will become a minority in their own country range between about 2040 and 2070.

For a glimpse of what that will mean, Americans need only look at the situation today in California. Huge areas of the state are now effectively part of Mexico, with Mexican border forces regularly shooting at American border guards, and Hispanic racist groups are openly agitating for the USA's southwestern states to be annexed by Mexico.

Los Angeles is now the biggest Korean and Iranian city in the world outside of Korea and Iran. And in the once respectable white suburb of Glendale, a vicious gang war is being fought between Hispanic and Armenian youths.

UNGRATEFUL

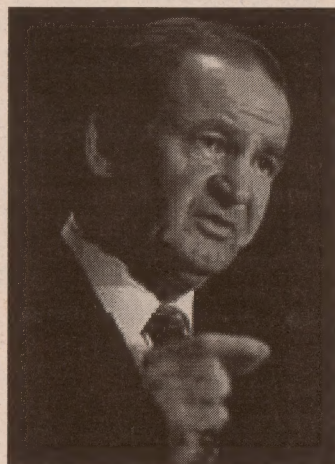

For some strange reason, vast numbers of Californians don't appreciate all the wonders of the multi-racial dream, and states further north are seeing an endless influx of 'white flight' settlers. But with greedy corporations desperate to import cheap non-white labour, and with the federal government doing everything in its power to speed the time when white America becomes a distant memory, more and more Americans are asking themselves where their children will be able to run to?

This growing fear is one of the key factors pushing more and more members of the USA's chronically divided 'right-wing' to support Pat Buchanan's Reform Party presidential bid.

While Buchanan is far from perfect, his candidacy - and the hysterical left-wing reaction to it - is likely to prove to be a big step towards turning the Reform Party from being a loose coalition of different anti-establishment groups into a genuine party of America First white nationalism. Looking at the population figures, it's clear that Americans don't have long to save their country, but all the signs are that at least some of them are going to try.

EUROPE NEEDS 80 MILLION IMMIGRANTS! ...or so they say

The European Union needs between 50 and 80 million immigrants in the next 50 years if it is to maintain its economic performance and social standards, according to a study presented by French Interior Minister Jean Pierre Chevenement at an informal meeting of EU interior and justice ministers last month in Marseille.

Mr. Chevenement's projections, based on figures from the United Nations Population Department, opened a debate over controlled immigration policies within the EU.

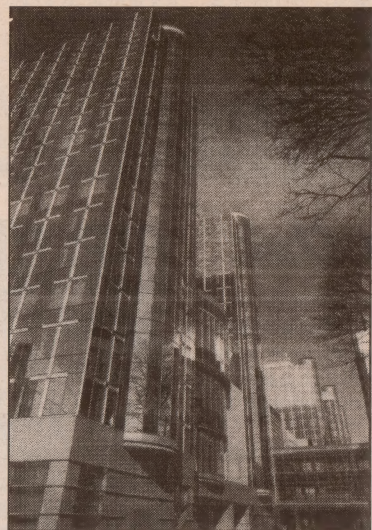

Without immigration, the population of the EU could fall from 370 million at present to some 310 million in 2050, according to Mr. Chevenement.

Some 50 million people would have to immigrate to keep the population stable, and up to 80 million would be required to maintain the workforce at its current level, he added.

Regardless which figures one started with, in the future, all EU citizens would have to accept living in "multi-ethnic societies," the French minister said. Europe, she said, would have to take care to court qualified immigrants.

Not surprisingly, the treacherous proposals put forward by Mr. Chevenement at the Marseille conference - a forum meeting, not a decision-making meeting - did not receive universal support among the 16 EU member countries, although several ministers shared the opinion that their countries' economic interests required qualified immigrants. However, a final communique said that neither the "green card" debate nor the "improbable hypotheses of certain pollsters" could prevent the interior and justice ministers restricting themselves to the work program on immigration approved last October in Tampere, Finland. In EU-wide coordination, interior and judicial policies would focus on steering refugee flows, combating organized human smuggling and ensuring law and order where immigrants reside.

STRASBOURG:
Heart of the Euro beast!

In the long term, the EU partners will harmonize legislation in these three areas.

France, which currently holds the rotating six-month EU presidency, also wants to reach agreements on higher penalties for smuggling immigrants, on harmonization of residency rights for legal immigrants and on uniform asylum legislation before the end of the year. The German, French and Italian governments announced harsher measures to combat human smuggling in the future, with Germany's interior minister, Otto Schily, advocating uniform fines. The French justice minister had recently announced that the 10,000-franc fine currently imposed on smugglers in France for each illegal immigrant caught is to be tripled.

The fifth columnists to be found in every European country were soon adding their voices to the call for more immigrants. In Britain it was Home Office Minister Barbara Roche - opposed in a teletext poll by 97% of the people.

In Germany, Wolfgang Gerhardt, chairman of the opposition Free Democratic Party, has called for admitting 70,000 "highly qualified" immigrants each year.

"Germany needs the sort of immigration that is productive for the labour market and helps balance the increasing percentage of elderly in our society," Mr. Gerhardt said in an interview with the Frankfurt Allgemeine Zeitung. He said 1½ million job openings cannot be filled because German jobless do not have the requisite skills.

It is by no means certain that the fifth columnists will get their way for more immigrants. It is up to all Europeans to make sure that they don't!

SOUTH AFRICA

South African criminals have recruited witch doctors to concoct a mixture of hyena's tails and herbs, which, when burnt, produce smoke which makes people and animals unconscious for hours.

The smoke is being blown through tubes into the homes of white families in Durban before their homes are ransacked.

The hyena tails are thought to have been used by Zulus during the 19th century to anaesthetise wounded warriors.

Trade in illegal hyena tail smuggling from Botswana is currently booming, and the raids on whites enjoying the benefits of South African 'majority rule' are known as 'hyena heists'.

FAMILY FEUD

The brother of Home Secretary Jack Straw, Britain's 'Big Brother', has hit out at Labour's policy on the family. Ed Straw, who is the director of Relate, formerly the Marriage Guidance Council, says that stable families make economic sense, and that a fortune in taxpayers' money could be saved by looking after them. Labour, of course, hates the family for the same reasons as the Russian communists did. It helps to hold society together.

COMMUNITY SERVICE

School governor Ridha Gabsi has been sentenced to 100 hours community service after fracturing the jaw of 15-year-old James Bass with a single punch to the face. The victim needed two metal plates screwed into his jaw. Gabsi was a governor of Our Lady's School in London's Camden, and said to be 'active in community work with children'.

RACE SHOCK

The despised Commission for Racial Equality has lost £750,000 in public money following cancellation of a 'race congress' which was to have been held at Cardiff Arena last March. An official report blames losses from the cancelled anti-white hatefest on a 'devastating catalogue of incompetence and mismanagement' by the CRE. Corruption has also been mooted as a cause of the losses.

GREENS AGAIN

The problems faced by parents in making their children eat their greens (see July Voice of Freedom) may have been solved at last. US researchers have found that mothers who eat their greens during pregnancy, or while breast feeding, have children who are more inclined to eat theirs. The researchers think that babies learn what is safe to eat from their mothers even within the womb.

ENTHUSIASTIC MEETINGS NATIONWIDE

Croydon

Forty members and supporters attended this gathering opened by meeting Chairman Mike Barnes who started off by saying that there are more and more signs that the status quo is being questioned and that this will lead to a lessening of credibility for establishment politicians.

After a financial report, the BNP's Instant Response Group Organiser, Bob Gertner spoke on the work that went into the very good North End council by-election result last month, followed by Lewisham BNP Chairman Richard Brook who spoke about the party's prospects in Lewisham and Bromley.

Both of these speakers were very optimistic for the party in S.E. London.

After a break, Mr. Tyndall of Hove gave the main address of the evening and started by savaging the politicians who have allowed child victims like Sarah Paine to become a regular occurrence.

It is these people, he said, we should feel "red-blooded hate" for. Looking rather flushed from his energetic speaking style, Mr. Tyndall finished to the usual storm of applause by bellowing that those living in Africa and Asia have no business criticising Britain.

The collection for Croydon BNP's election fund topped £180 and shows once again that the party is beholden to no one except its members.

Special mention and thanks must be given for the supporters who travelled to this event from as far away as N. London, Stevenage, Gillingham and Winchester.

Watford

In Watford, thirty members and supporters from N.W. London and Watford heard the BNP's head of Group Development & Regulation, Tony Lecomber, give a considered talk about the changing emphasis of party electoral activity. Past results and methods were recounted with specific reference to the recent North End by-election and the importance of canvassing to achieve similar good results both there and elsewhere in the future.

He was followed by National Press Officer Mike Newland who recounted his experience of standing as the party's mayoral candidate.

"Times have changed" he said. "There is a definite mood swing occurring and people are looking at what the British National Party stands for with more and more interest and sympathy."

National Chairman:
Nick Griffin

Mike also reiterated Mr. Lecomber's point that more hard work allied to more sophisticated campaigning techniques will give the party the breakthrough it needs — particularly when it is known that both Labour and the Tories are dying on their feet organisationally.

There then followed an intelligent question and answer session, followed by meeting Chairman Ian Edwards conducting a very good Dutch auction collection to raise £270 — a reflection of the enthusiasm of the meeting — for local party finances.

Leeds

Branch Organiser, Tony McDonnell chaired the June branch meeting in Leeds and spoke encouragingly of the increased activity and support from within the region. The forty members and supporters present clapped and cheered Tony's upbeat assessment of the region's future.

During the interval everyone enjoyed tremendous Yorkshire fare before gathering to hear the main speaker for the evening — Chris Jackson.

Chris, the party's North West Regional Organiser, stressed the need for active members to acquire new skills whether they be learning a language, computers, or public speaking.

Most of these subjects are available at local colleges and with government grants are very cheap. Many members, he said, forget that a growing movement needs all kinds of skills if it is to progress.

Chris then enthused the audience with an account of the rapid growth and success the party is finding in the old cotton towns of the North West and several good tips were passed on to the audience as to how this was achieved.

After the collection was found to have raised £120, Tony McDonnell took 1,000 leaflets and gave out around 25 to everyone present to distribute on their way home.

It would be painless, he said, take ten minutes and yet amount to a worthwhile activity in its own right. A good tip from Yorks!

Darlington

Darlington was the venue for one of the best BNP meetings in the North East for some time. The meeting was called to bring together the growing number of active members and supporters in Teesside.

Ably chaired by Teesside organiser Andrew Harris, the well-attended meeting was addressed by local stalwarts and by a member of the anti-EU Democracy Movement and by North East Regional Organiser Kevin Scott, who contrasted the hard times 'enjoyed' by the BNP in the area in the early '90s with the much more favourable climate which is developing today.

He went on to express his belief that, by presenting itself as the radical alternative to Tory Blair, the British National Party could make tremendous inroads in areas once considered rock-solid Labour.

This theme was taken up by the main speaker of the evening, BNP

National Chairman, Nick Griffin.

Mr. Griffin explained right at the start of his speech that, since everyone at the meeting would already understand about all the problems relating to immigration in its new disguise as 'asylum-seeking', he was not going to dwell on the issue.

He concentrated instead on the question of how, once the immigration flood is reversed under a future BNP government, we will go about rebuilding British manufacturing industry.

He said that, while it clearly makes sense that a nationalist government would not want to interfere in areas of the economy which were already doing well, the wholesale collapse of Britain's manufacturing base calls for very radical measures.

He focussed in particular on how it would be wrong simply to erect tariff barriers and then to allow the same big business interests that are today profiting from globalism and exporting British jobs abroad to profit under the new regime by being given a guaranteed home market and public money to help them to build new factories in Britain.

industries would be through a variety of worker-ownership schemes such as producers' co-operatives.

Taken together with a commitment to the restoration of an effective National Health Service for all our people in genuine need, such a radical stance, Mr. Griffin stated, will put the BNP firmly in the vast area of political space that has opened up to the left of the globalist Labour party.

"And that is where we need to be. Not just because it is the right thing for the British nation and for our communities, but because there are millions of votes out there for the taking for a party which replaces Labour as the party of the white working class."

We're not going to stop courting farmers, small businessmen and anti-EU patriots, but we must understand that our breakthrough will come in old Labour areas on issues like jobs, housing and the health service."

Before driving home the following day, Mr. Griffin had an hour-long meeting with senior officers of Darlington's community relations police, to discuss concerns that local BNP members had

N.W. Organiser Chris Jackson addresses the crowd

"For the last twenty years or more, these people have been profiting from the destruction of British industry. What right have they to profit from it's rebuilding under the BNP?"

We're going to have to ask the British people to work damn hard to recreate a real manufacturing and heavy industrial base, so the least we can do is to ensure that those who do the work get a personal stake in the profits."

He suggested that a far fairer, more efficient and stable arrangement for the ownership and control of newly rebuilt about police comments to the local media.

The meeting was frank but generally good-humoured, and ended with the police accepting that the official publicity material being distributed in the town by party activists was entirely legal, and acknowledging that the provisions of the forthcoming European Convention on Human Rights meant that they now have a duty to ensure the right of BNP members to impart their views and policies to the general public.

BNP SEEN USING ASYLUM FEARS

Shock as party beats Lib Dems and Tories

Barbara milks cold custard occasion

Barbara Milks, a BNP candidate, at a hustings event.

by LINDA PIPER

IN A shock result, the British National Party has beaten both Tories and Liberal Democrats to come second in a Bexley Council by-election.

When the result of the North End (SE10) by-election was announced last Friday, Colin Smith, the BNP candidate, had beaten Tory Philip Chant into third place by 43 votes.

The BNP used its election campaign to play on the anxieties of local people about asylum seekers being housed in the Slade Green area.

In several election leaflets it talked about "hundreds of bogus asylum seekers making the benefit system."

It claimed Bexley's Tory-controlled council had put all the borough's asylum seekers in the Slade Green area, alleging poor living conditions for local people while asylum seekers got new homes.

It claimed the local youth centre had been shut to turn it into a reception centre for asylum seekers. And that there was to be a new drug rehabilitation centre in Manor Road.

Most of the facts were either untrue or misleading and were condemned by mainstream politicians.

The Council says a maximum of only 30 refugee families are ever housed in one area — and that includes Slade Green. Council leader Mike Slaughter predicted the BNP's success would be short-lived and would not be repeated in a borough or general election.

Labour Group leader Chris Hall said it was worrying that an extremist party like the BNP could poll so many votes, but he admitted the BNP had touched a nerve in Slade Green.

"They used misleading comments to generate fear," he claimed.

Another of Labour's North End councillors, Colin Hargrave, raised the dangers of placing large numbers of asylum seekers together in Slade Green last year.

And the council and Bexley Council for Racial Equality have been aware of tensions in the area and moved to try and settle things down.

BCRE and the community safety partnership organised football sessions with Bexley people with clear and accurate information.

If that had been done, he says, people in Slade Green would not have been misled into believing their area was being overrun with asylum seekers and that local facilities were being taken away to provide for refugees.

And some residents complained after asylum seekers were moved into homes bought by a housing association, on their estate of privately owned homes.

There have also been problems at the hotel for the homeless where two families were housed. CCTV cameras and a direct line to the police have had to be installed.

Coun. Hall says one of the things the council must address quickly is supplying Bexley people with clear and accurate information.

NORTH END RESULT OF 26.2% BRINGS A WAVE OF PUBLICITY AND ENQUIRIES

JUST ONE month after the North End local by-election and the enquiries are still coming in! The Guardian newspaper in particular has been most interested in the party's strong showing in the ward and attempted to 'door-step' the candidate at his home and published many major articles in a short space of time (see below).

The election result gained a column in The Times, The Bexley & Eltham Leader and a host of other local and national papers up and down the country — too many to name. In the aftermath of the election a "thank you" leaflet was distributed to the whole ward and the local branch, Bexley, has been strengthened as a result of the enquiries now being followed up.

Perhaps the most interesting piece of news coverage was in The New Shopper which ran its whole front page (see bottom of page 10) on the election result and printed the whole of our first leaflet which could be clearly read with the address also shown.

Thanks to the way the election was run, we can claim that, of the doors that were knocked on, several thousand North Enders said to our canvassers that they were going to vote for the British National Party. Had those supporters actually got out and voted we would have a landslide result on our hands. In the end though, only a small proportion of that support actually got out and voted for us, although that was a slightly higher than average proportion given the turnout. The election has raised moral in the region following a meeting of the whole of South East London Region and activity is at levels unheard of in South East London. Well done to all those involved!

helm, the new brand also boasts the very mumsy Sharron Edwards as deputy leader, as well as a number of family-orientated events, including the annual "Red, White and Blue" festival next month. Spearheaded by 16-year-old Paul Golding, the youth group was launched as part of this wider charm offensive.

The Macpherson report, with its recommendations for a revised national curriculum, is the biggest source of contention for the YBNP. In the website's chatroom, a pupil at a south-London school complained about the report's suggestions "for even more multi-cultural education — that's attempted brainwashing to you and me". Of course she feels sorry for Lawrence's family but he was, she says, "just one of the many victims of the artificial multi-racial society".

The website, adorned with illustrations of all-white bleach-blond nationalists, also carries a collection of articles, jokes and music (for those "fed up with listening to the raw African drum-beats" and "anti-white slant" of Radio One). After research into what youngsters search for on the net, the intention is to decorate the site with articles on ancient myths, legends and UFOs, to draw in viewers before using it "to influence young minds so that they are more open to our patriotic message".

The young make-up of the group and the fact that the BNP lives in perpetual fear of being ambushed by its bitter rivals on the far left, means that meetings are few and far between. Communication is confined to letters, leaflets and website updates. Golding's idea of being assertive involved sending out extra copies of Excalibur, asking me to "spread them about a bit".

However, Neil Barratt, a specialist in far-right politics at Manchester University, is unconvinced. "The youth angle is massively misplaced. They are trying to appeal to racist sentiments but that's least strong in the youth. And why should this apathetic, apolitical youth want to join the far right?" he questions.

Likewise, anti-fascist magazine Searchlight isn't breaking into a sweat. Says Tony Robson: "We don't know much about the characters running it except that organisationally they are very small. Our main worry is that a lot of people who have been recruited from that, but as far as we know a lot of them aren't staying." To counter such groups, the magazine set up the Searchlight Educational Trust in 1992 which has school teachers and a NUS-led Campus Watch campaign blocking fascist activity aimed at children and students.

Of course, none of this will deter Paul Golding. Having designed an "alternative national curriculum" ready to hit the schools by the beginning of next term, he is now in overdrive, preparing for the next general election. Despite an internet appeal raising over £200, Golding accepts that he cannot rely on youngsters continuing to relinquish their pocket money for the sake of his crusade. In future, Paul will be looking to appeal to the main body of the party for funds. In his last letter to me he wrote — with no hint of irony — "our members are very sensitive... they will give heavily when it comes to the young".

When Merope Mills approached the Young British National Party as a journalist, they didn't want to know her. So in order to find out how they attract young members to their far-right politics, she joined up

For race and nation

It is when you read the last line of her emails, or catch a glimpse of her username that you realise Ella is not like other teenagers. Her gripes capped with multiple exclamation marks are what you'd expect from your average 15-year-old. But there's that strange email address and unique signing-off that niggles away. When I email Ella

I type in an address beginning "freesaxon," and when she replies she writes "for Race and Nation". Ella is a member of the Young BNP, the youth wing of the British National Party launched in January.

I first contacted the YBNP after receiving its first recruitment leaflet in the post. Press spokesman, Mike Newland, gave me short shrift when I told him I was a journalist: the BNP was "very happy" with the progress of the youth wing and would therefore have to decline my request to speak to some of its younger members. Still intrigued, I decided to joined it. Six months on, under the guise of an 18-year-old student new to far-right politics, I have been bombarded with propaganda, offered secretariats and, most recently, asked to take up an organisational role.

The decision to set up a youth wing, claims the first edition YBNP's Excalibur circular, the result of hearing from "youngsters fed-up to the back teeth of watching their country going down the drain". Ella was not alone in prompting the launch of the YBNP. James, 15, says his school in Wolverhampton is OK but "the people in and around it make it seem to any person who might happen to pass as the capital of Pakistan". Likewise, "a 20-year-old white male" wrote in complaining about "the steady growth rate of the anti-white involvement of governments we continue to vote into power" and the regeneration programmes that, he snipes, are just "for foreigners".

In an effort to be billed as moderate, the BNP has been busy itself with a new image, having recognised the unselectable skinhead thugs of yesteryear were a political faux pas. With Nick Griffin, a Cambridge graduate and father of four at the Campaign targeting a handful of asylum seekers creates poll 'triumph' for far right in a deprived corner of south-east London

The suburb where one in four voted BNP

Paul Kelso

For a loser, Colin Smith is a happy man. He has every right to be. Representing a minority party campaigning on a single local issue with only a handful of activists to help get his message across, he last week pulled off an electoral coup. In a council by-election in the North End ward of Bexley, south-east London, Mr Smith lost — but came second behind the Labour candidate and pushed the Tories into third place in the process. It was, his party newspaper trumpeted, a triumph.

It was also a triumph for fear, hatred and racism. Mr Smith represents the British National party, and campaigned on a single issue: asylum seekers.

In election literature and on the ward's 4,000-odd doorsteps, Mr Smith played on fear and prejudice. North End was a "dumping ground" for "undeserving scroungers", he said; asylum seekers were housed as a priority while homeless local people stayed on waiting lists and illegal immigrants "milk the benefit system" while "British children are in poverty".

The literature did not mention that Bexley has 390 asylum seekers — fewer than all but two of London's 33 boroughs. Just 17 families seeking asylum live within the ward. None the less, it was a persuasive message. The BNP took 26.2% of the vote. "British people have sent a message to Tony Blair — democracy is coming home," Mr Smith said this week.

Forlorn

North End lies just south of Erith at the eastern edge of Greater London — a cluster of low-rise estates centred on a forlorn precinct of shops and Slade Green railway station. It shares none of the leafy desirability of nearby Bexleyheath or Upper Belvedere. Unemployment runs at 8%, twice the national average; around half the housing is owned by the council or housing associations; teenage pregnancy rates are higher than elsewhere in Bexley, as is the incidence of poor health. Vandalism, burglary and drugs blight the lives of residents, 96% of whom are white.

For the BNP a deprived area such as North End is fertile ground. "On the doorsteps it is made for us," said Mr Smith. But while he sees political opportunity, Linda Taylor's experience is very different. She runs the Howbury Park hostel in North End, an emergency housing facility with room for nine families. It is available to anyone with an acute housing need, but in the past two years has accommodated asylum seekers from the Czech Republic, Poland, Croatia, Rwanda, Afghanistan, Serbia, Latvia and Dubai. It has come under attack as a result.

"We have had lots of harassment. Much of it is not reported to the police because Erith (above) and North End are fertile ground for the BNP but most residents are not racist says Linda Taylor, whose hostel has housed asylum seekers. Photographs: Martin Godwin people are scared, but it got to the stage where the children couldn't play in the garden because of the abuse," she said.

Until recently local youths would gather and throw bricks over the garden wall, shouting racist abuse and spitting at the foreign children. White children living at the hostel were left in peace. In response Bexley council installed CCTV cameras and replaced the wall with railings so that the youths could no longer hurl bricks without being seen.

"We've seen improvement here but the assaults, name calling, and abuse all continue outside," said Ms Taylor.

One Romany family from Poland returned home after their daughters were attacked at Slade Green fair, while another Polish man was attacked with a bottle on his way to the shops. Neither incident was reported to the police.

"What people misunderstand is that this centre is for all people, not just asylums seekers. Anyone who comes here is at rock bottom, black or white. Within the hostel their children play together with no problem," said Ms Taylor.

"The other kids, the baseball hat brigade, are different. Their parents encourage them to racism. But the majority of people are decent, honest and not racist." Debbie Lee, Ms Taylor's neighbour, is typical of that majority. Her husband Dave, a lorry driver, has twice been attacked by asylum seekers trying to get into his vehicle on the continent, but she still feels asylum seekers deserve sympathy.

"If they are genuine then fair enough. I don't agree with the bogus ones, but real ones deserve a chance. I told the BNP where to go when they knocked on my door. They are using asylum to bring up racism, and that is wrong."

English nationalism has long been strong south of the Thames estuary, and the BNP's strength lies in harnessing local disaffection to antipathy towards asylum seekers, who are no more than a convenient scapegoats in an area with profound problems.

The North End result sent shock waves beyond Bexley. Most tellingly, it raised concerns within Conservative central office that immoderate language employed by the Tories on asylum might have been partly responsible for the improving fortunes of the BNP.

The Tory candidate for London mayor, Steven Norris, went further. "It looks as if the BNP is on the up. I don't believe a politician in any party can afford to relax their guard. If you just appeal to your core vote, it can be very satisfying, but it is not going to win a general election," he said.

Perhaps not, but in this deprived corner of the greater London hinterland, race in politics is a matter of degrees. No mainstream candidate can ignore it here and hope to win popular support.

Tory election literature was in some respects indistinguishable from that of the BNP. "For bogus asylum seekers ... Britain is the biggest soft touch in the world," it read.

Nationalist

The local Labour MP, Nigel Beard, is mindful that nationalist feelings run deep in Bexley. "I do have to take into account that this is an area with a long tradition of English patriotism. There is a deep feeling of identification with the country's tradition and history which is perfectly acceptable and valid," he said.

"I walk into pubs and people shout, 'when are you going to do something for the English?' That is not racist, it is a feeling of being bypassed, left in the queue for services while others go to the front. The area is almost exclusively white working class. It is an understandable reaction."

Drinking in the Cross Keys at nearby Erith, Del and Ken bear out Mr Beard's point. Ken says the town is "bursting with Bosnians", that they are "scumbags, no asset to anyone". He says the council saves all the money for the middle class wards, and dumps the asylum seekers on his doorstep. Del agrees, and says an anti-racism festival planned for September will cause trouble. "They spend money on all that, but not on me and my family."

The BNP knocked on Ken and Del's doors, but neither of them could be bothered to vote. Apathy may yet halt the racists' progress.

Young BNP announces Organisation plan

Up until now, the Young BNP hasn't been more than a circle of young party activists. But by the end of the year, this is all going to change!

Looking at the way in which European nationalist youth movements are organised, the Young BNP's Organiser, Paul Golding, has decided that the past problem in the BNP of keen and intelligent young members being unable to become party organisers because of the age problem, will be solved by the Young BNP establishing its own branches around the country to fill this gap and will be the best way of training young activists in preparation for when they are older.

This operation will be in full swing in the weeks after the Red-White-Blue and a full report will be in next month's issue of Freedom.

BNP FORMS 8 NEW GROUPS!

Since the beginning of the year, steady membership growth and enthusiasm for the party's prospects have resulted in eight new groups of the BNP being formed all over the country. The new groups in Watford & W. Herts; Harrow & Wembley; Suffolk; Teesside; Plymouth, Bedfordshire, Derby and Swindon & Wilts are but the tip of the iceberg with loads of keen new people desperate to start new groups of the party in their areas. North West London BNP can be particularly proud that activity in that area has led to the formation of two of these new groups, in Watford & W. Herts and Harrow & Wembley and there is the prospect of yet another one in Fulham too.

To the north of London there is the very welcome formation of a new group covering the whole of Bedfordshire and the likely prospect of a new group covering 'next door' Buckinghamshire very soon.

The formation of Plymouth BNP is a welcome return of the party to this part of the country which hasn't seen an organised party presence for nearly fifteen years.

Teesside and Swindon & Wilts BNP are both groups operating in areas that the party has never been organised at any time, with Teesside in particular showing a lot of promise.

Suffolk group has been operating unofficially for more than a year with sporadic leafleting and follow-up activities. This announcement means that Ipswich BNP is fully 'on-stream'.

Derby BNP is another group off to a flying start with a good influx of new young people from the area and thanks are due to Nottingham BNP for assistance and encouragement.

With Group Development officer Tony Lecomber looking like he may be finally relieved of the choking dead weight of administrative tasks, freeing him to promote new group formation, prospects for the rapid growth of the party's organisation has never looked brighter. Tony says that his most immediate priorities are those areas having the most potential in terms of existing members clustered closely together and where there is currently no BNP group.

MOVING FORWARD!

On top of heartening election results in May all over the country including London has come further proof that the party's huge potential is close to becoming realised. Last month, the BNP's Colin Smith took more than 26.2% of the vote in a by-election in S.E. London in a first time effort and thrashed the Tories into third place. This result is even better than it looks when you consider that this astonishing vote came in the teeth of adverse publicity surrounding the Copeland nail bomber affair. And following the result, the party has had excellent publicity both in print and on radio and TV.

The opportunities are there for the taking all over the country. All it needs is the resources to take advantage of them. There is no fluke about our results — the BNP is becoming increasingly known and supported by the public. But fighting elections, dealing with the enquiries that follow, turning them into members and simply to keep the party ticking over costs money.

There is no doubt that the party is poised on the brink of a major breakthrough. Just where that will happen and quite how long it will take no one can say, but it is only a matter of time! Do your bit to help make it happen and please send as much as possible to the party's £5,000 Moving Forward Fund. Thank you.

Please make cheques/POs payable to 'BRITISH NATIONAL PARTY' PO Box 1032, Ilford, Essex. Please send a S.A.E. if wanting a receipt for less than £10.

I enclose £ to the BNP's Moving Forward fund.

What we stand for

In the British National Party

- A massive expansion of Freedom and Democracy to roll back the erosion of our traditional freedoms and truly reflect the wishes of the people; the adoption of popular referenda & hi-tech direct democracy.
- The establishment of a government that puts British interests first.
- An end to immigration and the scandal of bogus asylum-seekers flooding Britain. The use of the billions now wasted in foreign aid to fund generous 'Homeward Bound' schemes to encourage immigrants to return to their lands of origin.
- British withdrawal from the European Union: trade with Europe where it suits us but no political ties, and no monetary union.
- The use of the £1 million per hour we at present pay the EU to fund the restoration of an effective National Health Service and proactive measures to produce a healthier population in the first place.
- British ownership and control of British industry and resources including the mass media.
- Protection of British jobs and industry by the selective exclusion of foreign manufactured goods from the British market.
- The introduction of tax incentives and other policies designed to ensure that the City finances British industry rather than foreign competitors.
